Inhabitants of Westchester County living within a radius of several miles around Van Cortlandt Park were considerably startled this morning when armies of soldiers, on foot and mounted, invaded their section of the county.

The rattle of musketry and the booming of cannon were heard on every hand.
Regiment after regiment approached the park from different points of the compass, and the scene was an animated one.

The cause of all this demonstration was the opening of Van Cortlandt Park to the National Guard of the State.
Fifty-five hundred men arrived early this morning to join their respective commands. Gen. Louis Fitzgerald has been perfecting arrangements for the past two weeks, and being an enthusiast on the subject of field practice he and his staff got the southern end of the park ready for service.

The Seventh Regiment left this morning for the third avenue road to One Hundred and Thirtieth street, and thence by train to Woodlawn. Here horses awaited them, and they were taken to the southern end of the park ready for service.

The Eighth Regiment came over from the city by the Hudson river, and the Ninth and Tenth regiments, they were encamped on the best points of advantage and presented a most warlike appearance.

The attacking party consisted of the Seventh, Sixth, Ninth, Tenth, and Twelfth regiments, and the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first, Thirty-second, Thirty-third, Thirty-fourth, Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh, Thirty-eighth, Thirty-ninth, and Fortieth regiments.

At 10.30 the rattling discharge of small arms could be heard on every side, and cannon belched forth their thunderous roar at regular intervals.

The commanding officers handled their men admirably, as if in the actual presence of an enemy, and the test was a grand, complete success.

The sun never shone upon a finer battle day, and nature lent her aid to the cause, as the clouds were dark and the wind from the north.

Gen. Fitzgerald found everything in ship-shape, and in actual action, and he was completely satisfied with his men as he did in his undress uniform.

An Express-World reporter witnessed the battle from Gun Hill, near the Park railroad station.

The first intimation of battle was a skirmish between the Twelfth Regiment, advancing from the city, and the First and Second regiments, who were in the line.

The Sixth and Seventh regiments advanced from Woodlawn and Jerome avenues, and the Eighth and Ninth regiments, who were in the line, moved to the front.

The Twelfth Regiment, who were in the line, moved to the front, and the First and Second regiments, who were in the line, moved to the front.

STOCK REPORTS.

A Ragged Market To-Day Caused by Thursday's Shake Up.

Cammack Denies That He Broke the O. T. Stock.

The Bank Statement Shows a Gain in Reserve of $1,440,825.

HERE was a ragged market today, and no wonder. After the fearful shaking-up operation received Thursday there was naturally an evening-up process this morning.

The light-weighted shorts covered up and the fellows who were carrying shorts on Monday morning sold out. Hence, rallies and reactions followed in quick succession, and at times when the market looked strongest it was really on the eve of a slump.

Probably greater interest was felt in Sugar Refineries than in any other stock, because of the flood of rumors on Thursday.

When it was found that they had good support, the market rallied, and the sugar margin traders felt to some extent reassured.

The fact that the trunk line people failed to agree at their last meeting creates no particular uneasiness, for the reason that all the questions in dispute have been referred to the presidents of the various lines, and there is little doubt that they will reach a peaceful solution.

The report having been freely circulated that Cammack broke O. T. on Thursday, the veteran speculator has wired the following to a prominent house:

"I sold O. T. stock on Thursday as a joke. I did not sell any O. T. stock, nor have I had any transactions in it for more than two weeks. I am a believer in the property."

The bank statement was more favorable than expected, a gain of $1,440,825 having been reported in surplus, which brings the reserve up to $4,912,125 above the 25 per cent. required by law.

Probable Fatal Result of G. A. R. Men's Rifle Practice.

Sheriff Sickles Custodian of the Beauty's Valued Bauble.

There was stored in Sheriff Sickles' big safe this morning a dainty feminine combs which Mrs. John J. "Johnnie" would give much to possess.

It was a fan belonging to Miss Leslie Carter, the Chicago society divorcee, who is now planning her debut as an actress.

Mrs. Carter's fan is a valuable article. That is why it is kept in a safe, but hardly the reason for Mr. Sickles' retention of it in the sheriff's office.

With frame of rarest amber, bejeweled with pearls and sapphires, and tipped with feathers which must have made the bird that sported them in his tail the proudest of the flock, the fan was a masterpiece of the artist's art.

The fan figured in some photographs which were taken by Mrs. Carter, at 318 Sixth avenue, and was left at the studio, from which the lady has since been unable to secure its return.

In the papers in review, which Mrs. Carter counsel, Hovey Hummel, prepared the reason for Mr. Sickles' retention of the fan is declared to be "unknown"; but it is widely known that the fan was a masterpiece of the artist's art.

Deputy Sheriff Ferguson executed the writ and recovered the fan.

FIGHT WITH A JERSEY SKILL.

A Man-Eater 12 Feet Long Killed on Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 31.—A huge shark, 12 feet in length, is on exhibition here, having been captured yesterday by Landlord Frederick Lawrence and Dr. Armstrong, who were fishing about 300 feet from the shore.

The big fish got caught on Mr. Lawrence's line and the latter was pulled out of the water. He, however, held on to the line until he received assistance from Armstrong, who was in a boat. Lawrence managed to swim to the shore in safety.

The shark was killed by Armstrong and his companion after a fierce struggle.

TRAGEDY OF THE DOCK.

Guarding cries for help, coming from the direction of the river, were heard by Watchman Frederick Boring on the Pike street dock, East River, at 3.30 o'clock this morning.

Boring rushed to the end of the pier, and in the darkness distinguished the form of a man struggling in the water, but before help could reach him he had sunk out of sight.

A crowd of men, who were present, rushed to the water, but the man was not seen. The body was not recovered until this morning.

LAST CITATION.

LURED TO A SHAMEFUL LIFE.

Alleged Abduction of Emma Strauss, a Handsome Immigrant.

Traced by Her Sister and the Girl's Betrayer Arrested.

Detective Campbell, of the Sixty-seventh street station, went to Newburg this morning to arrest John Kreutzmeier, a shoe-maker, charged with the abduction, last autumn, of Emma Strauss, a handsome immigrant girl of fifteen years.

The police say the case is an important one, but they throw as much mystery around it as possible. They refuse to give names, dates or facts to reporters for fear that several parties involved in the case might take the alarm and get out of the city.

Some of the facts have been learned, notwithstanding. The girl whom it is charged that Snyder abducted came to this country from Germany seven months ago. She was on her way to meet her sister, Frances Strauss, who was living with a family in Hoboken.

The girl's name was Emma Strauss. She was only fifteen years old, and her beauty made her conspicuous among other fellow-passengers on the steamship.

She had written directions from her sister how to reach Hoboken in case Frances was not able to go to New York. The girl was to have been taken to the hotel where she was to stay, and then to the home of her sister.

There she was approached by the shoe-maker. He was a man of pleasing address, and he talked very sweetly to her. She was so young and so beautiful that she was easily deceived. She went with him to a room in a hotel, and there she was abducted.

From what can be learned, it is supposed that he deceived the girl in some way and lived with her as his wife. It is known that they lived with a family in Hoboken, and that the girl was very happy there.
